General Practitioner and Psychiatry Registrar

I am a GP and Psychotherapist in Far North Queensland. I have been privileged to pursue my special interest in primary care Mental Health throughout my career as a GP in rural and regional Queensland. After 18 years of General Practice, 9 of which were spent at headspace working in Youth Mental Health, I commenced training in Psychiatry in 2017 and currently work for Queensland Health as a Registrar at Cairns Hospital. I am an adjunct Senior Lecturer with Generalist Medical Training, James Cook University as a medical educator in their GP training program. Through the Australian Society for Psychological Medicine, I am involved in delivering Mental Health/Counselling Skills Training for GPs and registrars, and I enjoy distilling the “best bits” from psychotherapy research and practice to make them practical and relevant for GPs.

Professional interests include lifestyle medicine, adolescent mental health, early psychosis intervention, psychological and social approaches to psychosis, “low-intensity” CBT for GPs, Psychodynamic, Jungian and Existential theory & practice.
